- Deliver food to the homeless
- Sponsor Depression Screening Day
- Sponsor AIDS Awareness programs
- Organize tutoring service for an elementary school
- Offer tutoring hotline on campus before exams
- Establish a shelter for abused women and children
- Develop an original, much-needed, community project that involves chapter members' interest, enthusiasm and volunteer services
- Heather's Teddy Bears (See Guides for information on this project)
- Hold a fundraiser to fund equipment or supplies for a non-profit organization
- Trick or treat in costume for canned goods for a Food Pantry with advance advertising
- Guest speakers with handouts on health or behavior for community guests
- Construct a web page for a non-profit organization

ASSOCIATION OF COLLEGE HONOR SOCIETIES (ACHS)
NATIONAL COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT 2004-2007
A MATTER OF ETHICS

RATIONALE

ACHS is proposing the creation of a national project as one way to achieve a long-standing goal of the organization: to increase the visibility of both ACHS and its member societies in the higher education community. Given the limited financial resources of ACHS, the sponsorship of a national project offers an economical but potentially powerful means of uniting member societies in a common program and providing opportunities for collaboration among ACHS member societies on individual campuses. This initial topic of ethics obviously crosses all academic lines, allowing societies the freedom to promote the project as they see fit. As the membership of ACHS is composed of member societies, participation in the national project would be voluntary and would vary by honor society discipline, chapter, and size. Member societies would report activities to the ACHS Executive Director who would serve as a resource and overseer of the national project on ethics.

OBJECTIVES

1. To commit to a leadership role in increasing college and community awareness of the various facets of ethics by investigating it via multidimensional avenues.
2. To provide opportunities for quality dialogue between colleges and their respective communities about ethical issues.
3. To promote, encourage, and strengthen commitment to ethical behaviors at all levels: individually and collectively within the academic community.
4. To serve as role models of ethical behavior for members of the academic community.
5. To train and develop college leaders in the art and practice of making ethical decisions.
6. To provide the college community guidelines for resolving ethical dilemmas.
7. To increase the knowledge, appreciation, and value of professional codes of ethics in various college disciplines.

LENGTH OF PROJECT: An initial commitment of three years with the possibility of extending the project.

SAMPLE PROJECTS/PROGRAMS developed by Dr. Sharon Burson of Psi Beta; Temple College
Telephone: 254-298-8357                      e-mail: sharon.burson@templejc.edu

1. Chapters of ACHS member society could sponsor a public forum on Ethics. Use panel format composed of prominent community leaders (e.g., business, industry, education, clergy, etc.).
2. ACHS member society chapters could develop a Speakers Bureau of community leaders who will serve as guest lecturers for individual classes. Publicize the list and distribute throughout the academic community.
3. ACHS member society selects a film that depicts ethical and/or unethical behavior. Advertise free film, provide childcare, popcorn, etc. Following film, divide attendees into small groups and provide discussion questions about the ethics portrayed in the film. Honor Society members, sponsors, and interested faculty serve as facilitators of groups.
4. Chapters of ACHS member societies could sponsor a campus wide forum on Ethics. Various disciplines inform attendees about their respective professional code of ethics (e.g., nursing, psychology, business, etc.).
5. Chapters of ACHS member societies could sponsor a Commitment to Ethics Day/Week on campus. Secure administrative support for all disciplines to devote all or partial class period to discussing ethics. Examples: philosophy class holds debate on ethical choices, psychology classes discuss behavioral aspects of ethical choices, history classes role play key historical figures who showed moral and ethical courage, drama classes select film (e.g., Man for All Seasons, Chariots of Fire) depicting ethical dilemmas, government classes identify examples of ethical and unethical political figures.
6. ACHS member societies could develop and provide a directory of web sites addressing ethical issues.
7. ACHS member societies sponsor a panel, forum, or guest speaker emphasizing the ethical conduct of scholarly research.
8. ACHS member societies cooperate and interface with Student Government Organization to sponsor Ethical Awareness Activities. Spearhead the adoption of an honor code for all student organizations on campus.
9. An honor society could locate a reformed violator of an ethical conduct who is willing to give their testimony. Provides a forum for this individual to perform a community service. Possible find this individual through a probation program. If not feasible, invite local law enforcement officials, probation officers, lawyers, etc to share their perceptions.
10. Chapters of ACHS member societies could sponsor an Ethics Hotline for campus inquiries.
11. Chapters of ACHS member societies could spearhead effort for all campus organizations to develop and/or post their code of ethics on selected web pages.
12. Honor Society develops, distributes, and analyzes a questionnaire identifying ethical issues, concerns, and solutions to faculty. Publishes results in school newspaper.
13. Honor Society identifies a local business, professional, individual, industry, etc. that is recognized in the community for outstanding ethical behavior. Presents recognition (i.e. certificate) in an awards ceremony, at an induction ceremony, or banquet. Establish as an annual event. Provide newspaper publicity.
14. ACHS member societies arrange to purchase inexpensive T-Shirts with catchy phrase touting ethical behaviors. At a predetermined date, all members wear T-Shirts to classes.

15. Honor Society sponsors essay contest on Ethics. Recognize winner at awards program, campus newspaper, local newspaper, and professional society newsletter. If funds are available, provide scholarship for winner.
16. Chapters of ACHS member societies could sponsor booth at Freshman Orientation programs that provide guidelines for ethical behavior on the campus and in the classroom.
17. ACHS Member Societies could sponsor a forum during their national convention on ethics and ways to promote ethical conduct.
18. ACHS Member Societies could publish an article on ethics in the national magazine or newsletter.
19. ACHS could provide links to web sites of other organizations that promote ethical conduct (see samples for collaboration below)
20. ACHS member society could include resource on ethical conduct and sample programming ideas to promote ethics in chapter fall mailing.
21. Elementary grades. Honor Society members develop a play (e.g., puppets) illustrating ethical behavior. Provide for elementary schools in community.
22. ACHS member societies could sponsor poster contest depicting an ethical concern for elementary children.
23. Select several grade appropriate books that illustrate and emphasize ethical behavior for elementary age children. Volunteer as readers in the classrooms and/or school library.
24. Honor Society sponsors poster contest depicting an ethical concern for elementary school children.
Follow up with certificates, plaque, newspaper recognition, etc.
25. Middle school. Honor Society develops an Is It Cheating? checklist. Make liberal use of case studies to illustrate both ethical and unethical behaviors. Distribute to teachers or volunteer to lead a class discussion.
26. High school. Honor Society invites members of high school honor societies to roundtable discussion on ethical vs. unethical behaviors. Topics could include plagiarism, ethical vs. unethical use of net as a resource, etc

OPPORTUNITIES FOR COLLABORATION WITH OTHER NATIONAL GROUPS

Center for Academic Integrity - Duke - (www.academicintegrity.org). The Center has a number of web resources that could be useful. ACHS is already a supporting member of the Center. Several of the ACHS member societies (e.g., ODK, ALD) have joined the Center for Academic Integrity.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR DIVERSITY:

Each honor society could develop its own emphasis. on this topic. For example,
Sigma Tau Delta - English - plagiarism
Kappa Delta Pi - Education - citizenship
Business honor societies - ethical conduct in business relations

EXAMPLES OF HONOR SOCIETY EFFORTS

The Spring 2003 Phi Kappa Phi Forum deals with Professional Ethics.

Mike Wolfe of Kappa Delta Pi - Civic Education.

The Delta Mu Delta Vision (Winter 2003) featured articles on Promoting Integrity in Business Decision Making.

The Sigma Beta Delta Aspirations (Fall 2002) featured an article, Questions of Ethics.

Alpha Chi's journal the Recorder (Vol. 46, No.3) has two articles on ethics. One, detailing a campus conflict that made its way into the national press, including the Chronicle of Higher Ed, has a neat angle on how honor society students were instrumental in the resignation of a college president who had altered a student athlete's grade.

RECOGNITION

Member societies will be given recognition on the ACHS Web site. A supplement to the Annual Report will include a description of the program to publicize this ACHS National Project and the participation of members.

ENDORSEMENT - The ACHS Board of Directors approved the development of this proposal by Dennis Organ and Glenda Earwood. ACHS member societies adopted this three-year national project at the 2005 Annual Meeting.
